

“Bridging Today and Tomorrow with Knowledge, Action and Unity.”

Established in 1986, KASCON is the largest national conference of its kind. In keeping with the motto above, KASCON engages the largest and most diverse group of Korean-American students to examine primarily the context of their existence in America: what it has been, what it is today, and what it might be tomorrow. At the inaugural meeting, nearly 500 students from 40 campuses nationwide and Canada gathered on April 4, 1987 at Princeton to join in “A Celebration of Korean-American Heritage”.

Inspired by the success and popularity of the first gathering, KASCON II, entitled, “Our Future is Today,” promises to attract even more students from more parts of America. The program is highlighted by six seminars, in which students and prominent Korean-Americans representing a rainbow of careers share new insights and partake in the cultivation of a culture and identity unique to Korean-Americans. An Asian-American play, art exhibit, recitals, banquet, entertainment, a dance party and a student leaders brunch on Sunday are also scheduled.

The directors at Princeton and more than thirty area directors throughout the country are working diligently to ensure a successful conference. I am looking forward to participating in KASCON II and hope to meet you in person on the weekend of April 8-10, 1988.

Sincerely Yours,

Thomas Baek
Founding Chairman
